

PUBLIC SAFETY THAT WORKS

It's easy to assume the best way to promote public safety is through a criminal justice response. But we're often ignoring alternative strategies that do work to prevent crime. For example, research shows that higher levels of household income are associated with lower rates of intimate partner violence against women.

Intimate Partner Violence Rates (1992–2014) by income for women

Source: Dr. Callie Rennison, University of Colorado Denver

THE TIME IS NOW

The time is now to advance a new vision of safety, community health and justice that works to strengthen families and communities.

GET INVOLVED
CCJRC.org